The skin is the largest organ of the body with the ability to sense and protect against invading pathogenic microorganisms. Wound repair is a complex and highly controlled process that involves epithelialization, contraction, extracellular matrix remodeling, vasculature, and tissue remodeling. The skin harbors a number of significant pathogenic microorganisms with the potential to invade and establish an infection at the wound site. In this review, we will summarize the current understanding of the mechanisms of skin wound healing and assess the contribution of a number of common pathogens that cause wounds. Emerging issues regarding the host defense mechanisms that prevent infections during wound repair are also discussed. The first stirrings of regular live cricket again came on Monday when the West Indies XI named in the second Pepsi T20 Domestic Tournament Series took to the field against the rest of the Caribbean islands with Jamaica the only other title holder in the competition. After the National Cricket League in Jamaica wound up a few weeks ago, the WICB took the opportunity to determine a representative team for the West Indies, with the initial tournament appearing as a back-up and a “rollicking feast of action” as it was touted. The WICB then invited other former and current West Indies players to form a four-team division, starting with the domestic side before spilling into the regional tournaments where Caribbean teams were invited to compete. Not a bad idea, although it went awry slightly when World T20 winners, the Tridents, turned it down, so the Government of Jamaica then invited the Windies and Jamaica took the opportunity to announce a “warm-up” tournament in anticipation of the upcoming West Indies tour of Sri Lanka. The Windies, named “The Tallawahs”, only managed to name their two-week squad in the beginning of June, with selectors including four former players who have not tasted international action in many years. “The Tallawahs” completed an interrupted schedule for the first four matches, with the final scheduled to be played on July 15, when a full squad will be named. The results of the four games played so far, which also included a masterful performance by the Trinbago Knight Riders (TKR) batting line-up over Jamaica Tallawahs on June 20, were announced on Monday, and confirmed the trend of poor cricket from the tournament so far. The Windies were hammered by Quetta Gladiators
